Description

An attractive example of this classic design and still a really useable piece of furniture. This elegant Georgian secretaire chest of drawers with a large amount of storage space and a good work area makes this versatile piece a wonderful writing desk for your WFH space. The main writing area has a selection of pigeonholes and two miniature drawers for storage and a red tooled leather writing surface. When closed, the secretaire faux drawer front features cockbeaded edging and boxwood stringing to the face and is complemented by brass drop handles. The three graduated drawer fronts below this feature the same cock beading and brass drop handles. Mounted on a base with a reeded edge and bracket feet. The overall condition is excellent with only light age-related wear. We have noted a small scratch toward the rear of the top which has been colour matched and re-polished.
