Description

The 'masnad' was a small, square rug, made for a Khan or important visitor to the tribe, to sit on. This charming little masnad contains a madder-red central lozenge and madder-red spandrels containing stylised birds and animals. Around the central lozenge is a glowing indigo-blue ground with plants emanating from each end. The ivory main border depicts a continuous vine - symbolising the eternal cycle of life. The rug, made by Afshar nomads in the Sirjan region of Kerman province circa 1900-1920, has a beautiful, glossy, full, woollen pile and is in excellent condition. Size: 1.12 x 1.09m (3' 8" x 3' 7").
