Description

A superb Victorian burr walnut library table of exceptional quality, dating from circa 1880. The beautifully figured burr walnut top displays rich tones and striking grain, framed by elegant moulded edges and serpentine shaping. Beneath, the table stands on impressive barley twist supports united by a matching stretcher, all raised on ornately carved cabriole legs with gilt accents — a hallmark of high-Victorian craftsmanship. Featuring two concealed frieze drawers, this piece combines sophisticated design with practical function — ideal as a writing table, library desk, or statement centre table. A highly decorative and versatile piece, offering real presence in both period and contemporary interiors.
