Description

An antique Gothic Revival credence cabinet, Northern Europe, late 19th century. Crafted in richly patinated oak, the piece is defined by its intricate tracery panels and pointed-arch motifs inspired by ecclesiastical architecture. The upper section comprises twin doors enclosing shelving with two drawers below, while the lower section provides an open display area framed by carved supports. Decorative mouldings and foliate motifs throughout highlight the cabinet's exceptional craftsmanship and the influence of medieval design revivalism popular during the Victorian period.
