Description

A late 18th to early 19th-century antique oak linen press featuring a two-part construction with panelled doors above a bank of six drawers. The upper cabinet opens to a single deep storage compartment, suitable for linens or wardrobe use. Veneered drawer fronts are arranged in a graduated layout with turned wooden pulls and simple escutcheons. A moulded cornice, bracket feet, and fine joinery, including dovetailed drawer boxes, reflect period English cabinetmaking.
