Description

A fine George III cellarette crafted in richly figured mahogany, raised on its original stand with square, chamfered legs. The box retains its original baize-lined fitted interior with six divisions for bottles or decanters and brass carrying handles to the sides. Simple, functional character typical of the early 19th century, with clean lines and an unfussy form that reflects the Georgian taste for restrained elegance. Its modest scale makes it a versatile piece, equally at home in a study, dining room or sitting room. Presented in very good antique condition with a pleasing patina, showing light surface wear and small veneer losses consistent with age. The brass carrying handles are slightly heavy for the form, likely early replacements but clearly fitted in period. The fitted interior shows expected wear to the linings. Structurally sound, clean and ready to place in the home. English, circa 1810. H: 56 W: 36 D: 25 cm
