Description

An unusual and beautifully made early twentieth century octagonal centre table with a tooled green leather surface and four turned legs and a matching central pilaster. The legs and central pilaster are united by a scrolled x-frame stretcher. This would look lovely standing in the centre of a hallway, or as a side table in a living room or study. Please note that this table is slightly too big to fit through a standard width doorway with the top attached - we have had to take the top off to get in through our door. Please check the dimensions below before ordering and check if it will go into your property with the top attached. If not please let us know and we will ship with the top loose, and you will just have to screw it back on once its inside. Condition: There are a few small scuffs and scratches to the leather top, and small signs of wear in accordance with age on the timber. Overall in very good condition. Mainland UK delivery (excluding the Scottish highlands) is included in the price - if you would like a quote for delivery elsewhere, or if you would like to collect the item yourself, please get in touch.
