Description

An antique library chair in golden oak, re-upholstered in green leather, circa 1900. The design features a curved top rail, shaped arms and closely spaced vertical splats, creating a supportive wrap-around backrest. Turned front and back legs are united by H-stretchers for stability. The seat has been updated in smooth green leather, complementing the warm oak grain. A practical and characterful armchair suited to a study, library or reading corner.
