Description

An impressive Edwardian armchair, dating from around 1910, crafted from solid Mahogany and featuring fine carved details throughout. The chair rests on bold acanthus-carved cabriole legs terminating in classic claw and ball feet, a hallmark of quality Edwardian furniture. The frame has elegant scrolling armrests with rosette carvings and decorative apron moulding. Upholstered in a refined textured damask fabric in a soft golden tone, this chair combines stately elegance with comfort — ideal for a drawing room, study, or library. Seat height: 42 cm Very good vintage condition — solid frame and supportive upholstery. Minor signs of age consistent with gentle use.
