Description

An elegant Victorian walnut centre table, dating from around 1890, showcasing the craftsmanship and decorative flair of the late 19th century. The rectangular top features a rich walnut grain with canted corners, supported by beautifully turned legs joined by a central stretcher and decorative spindle gallery, ending on original ceramic castors for easy movement. This table offers both function and refinement, perfect as a hall, occasional, or writing table in a traditional interior setting. Very good antique condition — solid structure, smooth castors, and a well-preserved polished surface with light age-related marks consistent with use.
