Description

A handsome William IV mahogany side chair, dating from circa 1835, featuring a curved bar back with a finely carved central splat and elegant reeded front legs. The seat is traditionally upholstered in a striped floral fabric, complementing the warm tone of the solid mahogany frame. This timeless design combines Regency refinement with early Victorian sturdiness — ideal as a desk chair, hall seat, or part of a period dining set. Seat height: 40 cm. Very good antique condition — solid and comfortable, with minor surface marks consistent with age and use. Upholstery clean and intact.
