Description

An elegant early 19th-century Regency side chair, beautifully crafted from solid mahogany with a shaped bar back featuring carved roundel motifs to each end and a double crossrail with decorative round details. The seat is traditionally upholstered in a neutral velvet, complementing the rich tone of the wood. The chair stands on finely reeded front legs and swept rear supports — a design that perfectly captures the refined symmetry and lightness typical of the Regency period. Seat height: 44 cm Very good antique condition — solid and stable frame, minor surface wear consistent with age, upholstery clean and ready to use.
