Description

A genuine 19th-century Chinese temple sculpture of Shakyamuni, finely carved with crisp bead-like ushnisha curls, refined eyelids, and deeply undercut S-folds. Remnants of original blue and red polychromy survive, adding subtle colour. The circular opening between the hands is the original candle aperture, confirming its devotional use. The back is also carved and painted, showing it was intended for altar or niche display. Strong decorative appeal with honest patina; no structural breaks, only age-related wear and small nicks to the base. Measurements • Height: 35 cm (13.8?) • Width: 22 cm (8.7?) • Depth: 16.5 cm (6.5?) • Weight: 1,074 g Condition Excellent antique condition overall. Minor paint losses and small base nibbling consistent with age. Structurally stable and visually striking. Shipping & Packaging Fully tracked and insured delivery. Shipping cost includes professional packaging, careful handling, and secure postage. Carefully packed using recycled materials where possible. Please study all photographs as they form part of the description. Questions are welcome.
