Description

Beautiful and unusual antique leather officer's trunk, 53 cm wide and in excellent original condition, and dating from c 1880. It is stamped with the maker Drew & Sons who retailed top quality items of luggage from their premises in Piccadilly Circus in the late 19th Century, where they were makers to the Royal Family. This trunk shows wonderful signs of use and travel, but there is no damage, just a few marks and odd pieces of travel labels. Inside there is a separate tray with a lid that folds back to reveal sections for various items and when you remove the tray there is space below for a pair of leather boots. The handle is good and strong, the solid brass locks spring perfectly, and all round this is a superior piece of antique luggage that is perfectly usable today, or maybe it should just be admired.
