Date of manufacture: 19th Century

Description

Despite being woven in the late 19th Century, this Shirvan runner retains its joyous appearance. This is mainly due to the longevity of the natural dyes, that have gracefully saturated over to time produce the distinctive blue and red hexagons on the border, that cover the rug like bunting. As we move towards the centre, the deep cerulean hue becomes prevalent, adding a layer of depth to the traditional motifs which it displays, such as the latched-hook medallions and the hand-drawn flowers. Overall, worn, patched repaired adds a layer of character to this runner. Size: - Age: Late 19th Century Condition: Patched Worn and aged - plenty of imperfections! Stock No: SG-SHIR0325

Internal Ref: SG-SHIR0325
