Description

A fine Victorian coal scuttle beautifully made in richly figured walnut with decorative pierced brass mounts. The shaped body features brass strapwork detailing and side panels with attractive grain patterning. The hinged lid lifts to reveal a clean interior for storing coal, kindling, or fireplace accessories. The piece retains its original brass scoop mounted neatly on the back. The scrolling brass carrying handle is both practical and decorative adding elegance to the overall design. The scuttle stands securely and displays well from all angles. This is a particularly stylish and well-preserved example suitable for use beside an open fire or wood burner and equally appealing as a decorative accent in a country house or period interior. Condition Report: Good condition with warm colour and patina. Light age-related wear and small marks consistent with use, as expected for a piece of this age. Structurally sound and ready for use.
