Description

A beautifully executed watercolour that captures the quiet majesty of the Scottish moorland. The composition unfolds across a sweep of natural terrain—heather, bracken, and moss-covered outcrops—washed in soft, subdued tones that suggest the stillness of early morning or the fading light of dusk. Presented in a gilt frame in good working order, the setting is both sympathetic and complementary, enhancing the artwork's atmospheric appeal. A graceful and evocative piece that would lend character and distinction to any interior. John A. Houston, R.S.A., renowned for his lyrical landscapes, brings a poetic sensibility to this scene, investing the familiar with a sense of quiet drama and emotional depth.
