Description

This is a stunning set of six plates and three open tureens/dishes. Plates are 9.5 inches (24cm) diameter. Open dishes are 12 3/4 inches (32cm) length, 9 1/2 inches (24cm) wide, 2 inches (5cm) tall. Manufactured in Yorkshire, England. During the "Hanover" period within English history, George IV was on the throne and the "Tory" prime ministers of the time were The Earl of Liverpool, Viscount Goderich. ...Just prior to The Duke of Wellington becoming Prime minister. These are clearly dishes produced for a more "well to do" household, imagine what transformations and changes in social history they have survived. The plates are clearly stamped with the red griffin, identifying them as first period 1826-1840 backstamp. In red the pattern number is clearly painted. The hand painting is stunning and the skills of the artist are clear as the flowers are easily identifiable. There is some gilding wear to the rims commensurate with age. Two of the dishes have some discolouration and two plates have rim cracks extensively photographed. The plates have stilt marks on the reverse and there are some minor under glaze soot marks. I can always provide more photographs or remote viewing ...
