Description

A fine Victorian mahogany pedestal dining table, dating from around 1850, featuring a beautifully grained oval tilt-top mounted on an elegant turned baluster column supported by tripod cabriole legs with brass castors. The table's mechanism allows the top to tilt vertically for easy storage, a typical feature of quality 19th-century craftsmanship. Made from solid mahogany with a warm, rich patina, this piece reflects the refinement and balance of late Victorian design — perfect as a centre, breakfast, or dining table. Good antique condition — solid structure, smooth tilt mechanism, minor age-related surface wear consistent with use.
