Description

A large and attractive silver menu or card holder, in the Art Nouveau taste. The frame has a 'lyre' shaped body and sits on a weighted base for stability. The size suggest that this would have been to hold a table menu, rather than a place or name card. An alternative use for this charming piece would be to hold a photograph. Dimensions below. There is a small area of 'flattening' to the reverse of the base rim, commensurate with age and use. Hallmarks :- Clear and readable. Date :- Birmingham 1910. Maker :- William Devenport.
