Description

An exuberant mixed-media painting depicting a profusion of pink and crimson blossoms in a summer garden. The artist has layered watercolour, gouache and possibly pastel to create a richly textured surface, blending impressionist brushwork with delicate botanical detail. Unsigned but confidently painted, this work recalls the style of early-20th-century garden painters such as George Samuel Elgood and Claude Hayes. Presented in a beautifully patinated gilt and marbled frame. Medium: Mixed media on paper Dimensions: 50 × 40 cm (framed) Date: c.1930–1950 Condition: Light surface toning; overall bright and ready to hang.
