Description

Discover the elegance of history with this exquisite pair of early 19th century mahogany open armchairs, a testament to the timeless designs of Thomas Chippendale. Each chair boasts a gracefully shaped top rail, adorned with intricate carved decorations that echo the master's touch. The pierced splat flows seamlessly into the well-crafted arms, inviting a moment of repose. The chairs have been lovingly brought back to life, their seats now newly upholstered in fabric that complements the rich tones of the mahogany. They rest upon square chamfered legs, a sturdy foundation that is both elegant and functional, connected by stretchers that promise enduring stability. Offered fully restored and wax finished, these armchairs are more than mere furniture; they are pieces of history, ready to bring a touch of classic sophistication to any contemporary interior. Whether placed in a quiet study or used to complete a refined dining set, these chairs are sure to captivate and charm with their historic allure and impeccable restoration. Height: 36 3/4 inches (94 cm) Width: 23 inches (58 cm) Depth: 20 inches (51 cm) Seat Height: 21 1/2 inches (55 cm)
