Unmarked but tested for 18 karat gold. The number three holds significant cultural and religious meaning worldwide. It's associated with important life stages (birth, marriage, death) in some cultures and is a prominent number in various religions, such as the Holy Trinity in Christianity (Father, Son, Holy Spirit). Sayings like "third time lucky" or "third time's a charm" reflect the belief in success on the third attempt. In Chinese culture, the number 3 is considered good because its pronunciation is similar to the word for "to live" or "life".
