Description

Cyma "Dirty Dozen" British Military Watch | WWII Issue | Cal. 234 | Serviced | Box & Spare Dial Part of the collectable and highly sought-after "Dirty Dozen" series — the twelve British Military wristwatches commissioned during the Second World War — this Cyma W.W.W. is a piece of genuine military history. While showing clear signs of wear consistent with service use, this example has been recently serviced and runs perfectly, offering an authentic connection to its wartime heritage while remaining functional as an everyday vintage timepiece. Key Details Model: Cyma W.W.W. "Dirty Dozen" Year: Circa 1944–45 Case Size: 33mm stainless steel Dial: Black with Arabic numerals and luminous markers Hands: Luminous sword hands (aged, possibly relumed) Movement: Manual-wind Calibre 234 Caseback Engraving: W.W.W. / P20389 Strap: Blue NATO-style textile strap (can be changed on request) Water Resistance: Not guaranteed due to age Condition & Presentation This Cyma "Dirty Dozen" bears battle-hardened character — with visible marks, scratches, and natural patina that tell its story. The dial shows signs of age, with possible refinishing or relume work at some point in its life. Des...
