Description

A refined Georgian mahogany tripod occasional table of elegant proportions featuring a square top with canted corners, an attractive and uncommon detail that adds sophistication to its clean, architectural form. The top displays a warm, well-developed patina, highlighting the quality of the period mahogany. The turned column is slender and finely executed with delicate ring turnings that transition gracefully into a well-shaped tripod base. Each leg terminates in an out-swept foot creating an elegant silhouette typical of late 18th- to early 19th-century Georgian craftsmanship. Light and versatile, this piece works beautifully as a wine table, lamp table, or decorative stand. Its restrained elegance allows it to sit comfortably in both traditional and contemporary interiors. Condition Good antique condition with a lovely age-related patina. Structurally sound.
