Description

Antique Late Victorian Solid Walnut Bookcase Cabinet A lovely bookcase cabinet of unusual quality and condition. This truly magnificent piece is a late Victorian period bookcase cabinet, dating from around C1880. It represents a superb example of high-quality cabinetry, constructed almost entirely from solid Walnut. This extensive use of solid timber, especially for the substantial cornice, sides, and all door components, is a rare indicator of its original premium quality. The cabinet retains its original French polished finish, which has matured beautifully, showcasing a desirable warm, rich Walnut colour and a deep, reflective lustre. The cabinet is designed in two sections: a glazed upper display bookcase and a solid base cupboard with a drawer offering masses of storage. The upper section is crowned by a deep, elegantly moulded solid Walnut cornice and features two glazed doors with its original hand floated glass (it does have a tiny 2" crack in the very edge near the top of the left hand door, we have left this as it is the original glass and not noticeable). The doors open to reveal a practical interior with three removable, infinitely adjustable shelves. The bas...
