Description

A Charming Scrub Top Pine Pembroke Table. A robust and daily usable kitchen table with great style. This is a charming and versatile antique Victorian Pembroke drop leaf table, dating to approximately C1880 and made from Pine. The table features a practical drop-leaf design that allows it to transition from a compact form into a larger surface. The size is perfect for 2 people to be at the table with the leaves down and will comfortably seat up to 4 people with the leaves down. Its key feature is the "scrub top", which has been recently re-scrubbed and clear-waxed, giving the tabletop a beautiful, pale and raw appearance that highlights the natural grain of the pine. The table has lots of charming original marks and dents which all tell a story of its life, the one top does have evidence of historic woodworm which is not active and has at some point has been filled. While it may have originally been a painted base table, it has since been stripped back to its natural state, allowing the wood to mature gracefully and achieve its current light, rustic aesthetic. The table stands on four turned legs, typical of the Victorian era, which provide stability and decorative det...
