Description

Exceptional Pair of Antique X-Frame Carved Curule Dantesca Style Armchairs . Exceptional Dantesca Curule Armchairs with Budapest (Hungary) Provenance. We proudly offer this superb, home-ready matching pair of antique X-Frame Armchairs. These are a prime example of high-quality Austro-Hungarian Renaissance Revival furniture from the turn of the 20th century (c. 1890-1900), embodying the imposing Italian Renaissance Revival style with strong regional influences. Provenance and Historical Journey Their provenance is exceptional: We were informed that the chairs originally belonged to a family in Hungary who were forced to flee during the Communist-era persecutions of the 1950s. The chairs subsequently travelled with the family, serving as a poignant, tangible link to their homeland. This unique history means the chairs are not only fine antiques but also historical artifacts of a Central European emigration story that we cherish. We recently acquired them from the last surviving daughter's estate, who had personally imported them into the UK. They now await a new custodian who appreciates both their beauty and their significant life journey. This direct link confirms thei...
