Fabulous English Regency Original Painted Pine Large Scale Apothecary Shelving. This is a wonderful, very original Regency antique painted pine free-standing apothecary shelving, recently removed from a Chemist shop. In amazing original condition and still in the original intended paint finish. Large scale, splits in two at the waist, the top open shelving section features turned spindle uprights along with cross over spindles to both sides with carved fan decorations to the corners. To the top of the Regency shelves is an original shaped crest. The lower section has a central cupboard door that has reeded shelf fronts inside. Good quality and in super condition, a decorative piece of original English antique painted pine apothecary furniture that dates to around 1815. In the images the top section sits well on top of the base, but the top section could be wall hung, above the base if preferred, as the top of the base lower section also has the original paint finish.
