Description

A quite exceptional and small mantel clock by Des Granges, Late Recordon. Working in Cockspur Street, London. The double fusee movement strikes and the repeats the hour on a single bell. The silvered brass dial features Roman numerals, strike/silent and matching blued steel hands. The case is of an unusual design and is delightfully small. There are brass fish scale sound frets to each side and the case stands on ornate brass tapered feet. The top of the case is almost a combination of a bell top and pagoda top together and is finished with a brass carrying handle. A rare example. NOTE: This clock has only just recently arrived. The case will require some sympathetic restoration and the movement will be fully serviced and guaranteed for 3 years.
