Description

A superb quality Victorian period bookcase, crafted in striking burr walnut with kingwood banding, showcasing the exceptional craftsmanship of late 19th-century English cabinet making. The upper section features four glazed doors – a central pair flanked by narrower outer doors – opening to fully adjustable shelved interiors, perfect for displaying fine porcelain, books, or collections. The arched and moulded pediment is richly carved, centred with a bold acanthus crest, and further enhanced with intricate carved details and mouldings throughout. The lower section comprises four panelled glazed cupboard doors, offering generous storage with shelved interiors, ideal for tableware or additional library storage. This impressive piece retains its original finish and displays a beautiful warm patina, with the burr walnut veneers and kingwood crossbanding producing a striking contrast. A truly statement piece of Victorian furniture, perfect for a grand reception room, library, or dining room.
