Description

Exceptional 19th-Century English Bisque Porcelain Parian Ware Drinks Jug Brief Description: This is an immaculate mid-19th-century English Bisque Porcelain pouring Jug made by: T. J. and J. Mayer, circa 1850. The pattern is called 'Boy with a bird's nest'. On one side of the jug, it portrays the boy climbing a tree to reach a bird's nest. On the other side, it portrays the young boy climbing back down the tree with the bird's nest he has just poached. It is an adorable piece that shows signs of having very little use. Indeed, the poorly uploaded images do not do the piece justice. The underside is stamped in several places with the manufacturer's mark.
