Description

A Nice Antique Edwardian Silver-Plated Salver. Raised on three scrollwork feet and edged with a beaded border, the round tray features delicately engraved neoclassical garlands, bows, and medallions - a design style evocative of the Georgian Revival popular in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Whether used for serving, displaying decanters, or as a timeless decorative piece, this salver combines function with enduring style. The bright silver finish and fine detailing make it a standout on any table or sideboard – circa 1905. Measurements: Diameter: 10 1/4" (approx. 26cm) Total weight: 610g In good condition – Light surface wear and faint scratches consistent with age and use. No major dents or plate loss. Engraving remains crisp and reflective surface is bright throughout.

Internal Ref: P51867
