Description

A charming 18th Century oak coffin, full of character, history, and traditional craftsmanship. Featuring three carved panel fronts, original ironwork details, and a rich, warm patina that has developed beautifully over time, this piece embodies the true rustic elegance of early English country furniture. The interior includes the classic small candle or document compartment, a traditional feature found in coffins of this period. Constructed in solid oak throughout, with pegged joints and hand-planed surfaces, its age and authenticity are evident in every detail. This coffin has been gently cleaned and wax-finished in our workshop, enhancing the natural grain while preserving its original surface and integrity. Perfect for use as a coffee table, hallway bench with storage, blanket chest at the foot of a bed, or simply as a characterful statement piece in any historic or modern interior. An honest, timeless antique with presence and soul.
