Description

You are viewing a set of four carved chairs in the Cromwellian style. An elegant set of four antique carved oak chairs featuring tall shaped backs with finely woven cane panels. The arched crest rails have gentle serpentine curve. Circa 1890. The seats are also caned, supported by turned front legs and block rear legs, all united by boldly carved front stretchers with scrolling foliate detailing. The carving is crisp and decorative without being overly heavy. Two of the chairs include shaped open arms with scroll terminals, while the other two are side chairs, making this a versatile mixed set for dining or decorative placement. A handsome suite with good colour and patina, full of period charm and architectural presence — ideal for a hallway, dining room, or as accent pieces in a period interior.
