Description

Technical Description A very rare late 19th century Art Nouveau glass water jug dating to c1890. It has a square rim with a clear applied handle to one corner. The entire water jug has a rare internal nut moulding similar to "Nipt Diamond Waies" which is an earlier moulding style primarily from the 18th century. Over the last 20+ years we have seen a few Cranberry dimple moulded examples with the same rim shape and handle and also a lime green rimmed example, from the same period. Who actually made them, I'm afraid we don't know as there are so few of them still around. This clear example is a first, and we can't find any other examples in our library or on line. A rare piece indeed. Date & Origin England or Europe, c1890. Condition Excellent, clean and clear, no chips cracks or restoration. Dimensions Height: 22.8 cm Rim : 9.2 cm Shoulder Diameter: 15 cm
