Description

Fine Signed Ary Bitter Art Deco Glazed Terracotta Sculpture – French, c.1920s–30s A beautiful glazed terracotta Art Deco sculpture by renowned French artist Ary Bitter, depicting a young nude woman gently petting a lamb. The semi-reclining figure has a serene, natural expression, perfectly capturing Bitter's sensitivity to form and movement. The sculpture features a soft nude-coloured glaze, complemented by the lamb's contrasting grey-blue finish, all set on a rectangular self-plinth with a grassy textured base. It is signed "Ary Bitter" on the upper surface and stamped "Made in France" to the underside. Artist: Ary Jean Bitter (1883–1973) A celebrated French sculptor and designer, Bitter worked in terracotta, stone, plaster and bronze, with some pieces produced in biscuit porcelain by Sèvres. Best known for his animal studies, he exhibited regularly at the Salon des Artistes Français from 1912–1939, earning multiple medals including bronze (1913), silver (1921), and gold (1924). He later collaborated with Susse Frères on limited editions and won further acclaim at the 1937 Exposition Internationale in Paris. This is a stunning and collectible example of his Art Deco ...
