Description

A small Japanese late Meiji period lacquered box, which is a fine example in really lovely condition with almost no signs of wear or use. The exterior sides are finished in plain rich gold lacquer, with the top beautifully decorated with hand painted raised lacquer in two tone gold, red, black and silver with a view of two cranes standing in shallow water with feathery foliage and reeds in the background. The underside and the exterior of the box are finished in contrast with a speckled orange bronze metallic lacquer. This small box is in very good condition with only the slightest signs of wear to some of the corner edges. Japanese, circa 1910 Height 4.5cm x width 6.5cm x depth 7.5 cm
