Description

A charming pair of 19th century Ashford Marble candlesticks. These candlesticks are a lovely example of this traditional local craft. The wide variety of colourful stone set around the base contrasts beautifully with the black polished marble. The condition of the candlesticks is compatible with age, there are a few very minor nibbles, these do not detract from the appeal. In the 19th century Ashford marble was extremely fashionable with a wide cross section of society, used for major projects in large country houses and small items in general. This continued until the source of the materials ran out in the early 20th century, hence items such as these candlesticks have become rare. c. 1880 Code: D1089 Height: 2.5" 6.5 cm Diameter: 3.5" 9 cm
