Description

A characterful 1920s oak countertop display cabinet, built with utilitarian craftsmanship, for practical shopfitting display. perfectly proportion , this glass fronted cabinet would originally have sat on a draper's counter, showcasing small wares while keeping them dust-free and secure. The cabinet is made in solid oak with warm, even colouring and a pleasing aged patina. The twin glass doors retain their original brass turned catch, giving it a distinctly period feel. Inside, the 2 glass shelves provide clear visibility and work well for retail, collections, or domestic display.
