Description

This is an antique coopered stick stand. An English, oak barrel umbrella loop, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1900. A wonderfully robust and characterful piece, ideal for the country house entrance or courtyard. Charming Victorian stick stand with excellent country house presence Select oak staves display warm caramel hues and pleasing grain interest Attractive half-barrel form, offering a generous capacity for walking sticks, canes or umbrellas Shows authentic ageing commensurate with careful, long-term use Upper edge set with a four-division cross member, helping organise and steady stored items Engraved to the upper rim with the maker's name S. Brown, enhancing its period appeal Cast iron bolt fittings bind the staves securely, providing lasting stability and a confident, weighty feel The industrial craftsmanship results in an impressive weight of 17.6kg (38.8 lb) A robust, practical and decorative addition to the hallway, vestibule or porch, this superb Victorian coopered stick stand, combines rustic charm with enduring quality—perfect for adding functional character to any traditional setting. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready for the home...
