Description

This exceptional Edwardian inlaid mahogany pedestal desk offers timeless elegance and superb craftsmanship, making it an ideal centrepiece for any traditional study, home office, or library. Beautifully constructed in rich mahogany, the desk features refined line inlay to the sides and rear, adding sophistication from every angle. The top is cross-banded in satinwood, enhancing the contrast and highlighting the quality of the period workmanship. Designed for both beauty and practicality, this antique pedestal desk separates into three parts for ease of transport, while providing excellent storage through nine smoothly running drawers fitted with brass handles. The tooled leather writing surface gives the desk a classic finishing touch, combining durability with character. Perfect for collectors, interior designers, or anyone seeking a distinguished antique desk with genuine Edwardian charm, this finely proportioned piece blends utility with elegance and stands as a testament to early 20th-century craftsmanship.
