Description

George III mahogany breakfront bookcase This exceptional George III mahogany breakfront bookcase presents a striking example of late-18th-century craftsmanship, combining refined architectural proportions with elegant decorative detailing. The upper section features four glazed doors with beautifully carved Gothic-influenced glazing bars, characterised by pointed arches and tracery motifs that highlight the sophistication of the period. Behind the doors are adjustable shelves, ideal for displaying books, ceramics, or fine collections. The lower section consists of a series of cupboards, each finished with attractive crossbanded corner details that enhance the warm, rich tones of the mahogany. The breakfront form adds depth and presence, making the piece a commanding focal point in any traditional interior, library, or study. Expertly constructed throughout, the bookcase retains a lustrous patina that reflects its age and quality. Its ample storage, timeless design, and architectural elegance make it a distinguished addition to antique-focused interiors or heritage properties. This striking George III mahogany breakfront bookcase comes into multiple sections so that it is ...
