Description

This is a very special piece of furniture, believed to have come from the estate office of a very large country house in North Wales. A magnificent George III campaign style solid mahogany bureau bookcase. This exceptional, elegant piece is formed of two sections for ease of transport. The top section has a moulded cornice over two doors with excellent flame mahogany panels. The doors open to an interior with adjustable shelves and pigeonholes. The top section also features two pull out candle slides which would have been an essential fitting in pre-electric days or if in the field. The base section has a baize covered fall front which opens to an interior with a small, mirrored centre door surrounded by pigeonholes, drawers and central storage well. The main body has two small loper drawers, a central dummy drawer and three further long drawers all fitted with brass handles. The whole piece is supported on bracket feet & has superb quality original brass handles for ease of transportation. This is a wonderful piece of furniture that will be an elegant and practical addition the traditional home interior & is as usable & practical as it was on the day it was made. The ori...
