Description

An Art Deco table lamp in the style of Edgar Brandt. Signed Muller Frères, 1930s. Complete with original frosted glass shade. Signed Muller Frères, Lunéville. The geometric relief patterning and the architectural metalwork of the base echo the work of Edgar Brandt, a pioneer of modern ironwork who helped define classic Art Deco style. Hobo loves because: just the right balance of elegance and drama. Crisp clean lines and architectural metalwork make for the perfect pairing. Muller Frères were a celebrated family of glassmakers from Lunéville, known for producing some of the finest Art Nouveau and Art Deco glass of the late 19th and early 20th century. Their early work reflects their time with Émile Gallé - layered, etched and wheel-cut glass with naturalistic motifs. As they moved into the 1920s and '30s, their style shifted towards the Deco aesthetic, becoming leaders in moulded and frosted glass lighting. All of our lighting is rewired and PAT tested to UK standard.
