Description

An Extremely Good Quality Late 18th Century, George III Period, Mahogany Bowfronted Sideboard, Of Elegant Relative Small Proportions, The Well Figured Top Over Three Drawers To Frieze, With Replacement Oval Plate Brass Handles And Fine Satinwood Banding Throughout, Raised On Elegant Square Tapered Legs With Original Spade Feet. This is a really lovely and practical 18th century, georgian sideboard, which is the absolute perfect size in terms of being big enough to be extremely functional and useful, whilst at the same time not being overpoweringly long and deep in a room, as is often the case for by far the majority of georgian sideboards which you will find for sale. Overall it retains a very good colour and although the top has various old marks, scuffs and scrapes they are very much consummate with the age of a piece which has spent over 200 years of its life being heavily used. Indeed it's amazing to think that it is very much as fit for purpose today, as it was the day that it was made. The elegant brass handles are later replacements but very much of the style which would have been in place originally, so sit extremely well on the piece and the satinwood banded dec...
