Description

William Duffield British, (1816-1863) Still Life of Fruit & a Vase Oil on canvas, signed & dated 1850 Image size: 13.5 inches x 18.5 inches Size including frame: 18.5 inches x 23.5 inches A wonderful still life painting of fruit and a vase by William Duffield. An array of fruit including grapes, peaches and a Melon are depicted grouped together on a table. Nestled behind them can be seen a grey crackle glazed ring handled vase flanked by wind fallen vine leaves. William Duffield was born in Bath in 1816, the second son of Charles and Anne Duffield. His father was a bookseller who at one time owned the Royal Union Library. His talent for art was spotted at a young age by the engraver George Doo who offered to take him as his pupil. He was later admitted to the Royal Academy Schools on 7 December, 1836 to study painting under George Lance (1802-1864) who was a great influence on his work. After graduating from the Academy he left London to study in Antwerp with the Belgian historical and genre artist Baron Wappers (1803-1874). He returned to England and went back to Bath, initially making his living painting portraits for local dignitaries, including the one of the May...
