Description

A highly decorative late 19th-century Victorian inlaid side cabinet, crafted in the manner of Edwards & Roberts, and showcasing exceptional marquetry and inlay work throughout. The cabinet displays a richly figured mahogany ground, finely inlaid with scrolling foliate motifs and floral detail, reflecting the quality and refinement associated with leading Victorian cabinetmakers of the period. The upper section features a glazed central door flanked by two glazed side compartments, each framed by elegant arched supports and turned columns. The interior is fitted with shelving and lined in a contrasting gilt-toned finish, ideal for the display of porcelain, silver, or decorative objects. Below, the cabinet is raised on square tapered supports joined by a shaped undertier shelf, providing both structural strength and visual balance. The overall form is architectural yet elegant, combining practicality with strong decorative appeal. An impressive and highly usable display cabinet, well suited to period interiors, libraries, dining rooms, or refined contemporary spaces seeking a statement antique piece.
