Description

A good quality matching set of 4 antique Sterling Silver salt dishes. They are stylish and good quality with a rounded shape and each stands on ball feet. Each salt has a gilded interior to prevent wear or corrosion from the salt. They are each individually hallmarked for Exeter, 1876 and the maker Josiah Williams & Co. They weigh approximately 204g in total. They are in good condition with clear hallmarks. There are some faint surface marks and a few minor dinks inside the bowls and some wear to the gilding but no major damages and overall they display well. They have been lightly cleaned and polished and are ready for use or display. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
