Description

A Georgian country elm carver chair in the Hepplewhite style, featuring a carved back splat and straight legs. The chair retains a green upholstered seat cushion, which lifts out for ease of use. The simple, well-proportioned form is typical of Georgian country furniture. A practical and characterful chair, suitable for use as a desk chair, occasional chair, or within a traditional interior. Condition The chair is in good condition and structurally sound, which is remarkable for a piece over 200 years old. There is evidence of old woodworm to one leg, which has been treated, with no sign of active infestation.
